THE GOAL AND THE WAY

The future lies
With those whose eyes
Are wide to the necessities,
And wider still
With fervent will,
To all the possibilities.

Times big with fate
Our wills await
If we be ripe to occupy
If we be bold
To seize and hold
This new-born soul of liberty.

And every man
Not only can,
But must the great occasion
seize,
Never again
Will he attain
Such wondrous opportunities.

Be strong! Be true!
Claim your soul's due!
Let no man rob you of the prize!
The goal is near,
The way is clear,
Who falters now shames God and dies.
—John Greenham in "The Vision Splendid."

THE TERMS FIT THE OCCASION

THE treaty terms are harsh, declare the Germans, and they are further aroused by the fact a French crowd threw stones at the German peace party. But the terms are easy compared with the demands Germany would have made upon the allies had the kaiser been victorious. If the terms are severe they are such because Germany's conduct made any other action by the peace conference impossible. The terms were made to fit the subject and they fit. If Germany has complaint to make let it be made to the cause of their misery—the junker-military party of Germany.

"HONOR, DUTY, COUNTRY"

CODED forms may change; the first principles for soldierly conduct are immutable. That, in other words, is what Lieut. Gen. Bullard told the West Point graduates of 1919 on Wednesday in that part of his address devoted to regulations and the man. When he became an officer, the General said, he learned the regulations by heart. Then the powers repealed and revised them. The same thing happened again and again. Finally, he threw the book over and fixed his code in three words: Honor, Duty, Country.

"They fit in everything," said the General, commending these words to the cadets, and he added, "I have never got into trouble by not knowing the regulations."

"Three words which can thus substitute for a whole set of rules have to be of fine significance. But the finest thing, after all, about the crews cited at West Point is that they do not cease to do their bit when they are taken out of a military application. If they give to the soldier that necessity of his calling, something staple and steadfast to stand by, they offer not less to the civilian, whether in private or public life. They do, indeed, 'fit in everything.' We can fancy a statesman with the real worth and dignity of his trust upon him preferring honor, duty and country to consideration of party, place and selfish power.

Militarism qualified by Gen. Bullard's terms confirms itself as a mainstay, not a menace, to the land, asserts the New York World. On lines of honor duty and country armies of soldiers and civilians merge into one mighty host of high-principled citizenship. The West Pointers who listened to this year's commencement speaker could have heard nowhere a more soldierly upholding of citizenly ideals.

With the 146th and the 148th Artillery new in this country it will be but a matter of days until our old Troop D boys are home again. What is Pendleton to do in the way of a reception?

The British have learned from Americans the use of the phrase "up against it;" the Germans may not know the expression but they know the feeling.

The unanimity with which the voters endorsed the increased school budget is gratifying even though the vote was light because of the absence of a contest.

28 YEARS AGO

(From the Daily East Oregonian June 18, 1891.)

Mrs. W. J. Stockman, of Juniper is quite ill at the Golden Rule. J. H. Lowrey left today for the Helix neighborhood to survey country roads. Civil Engineer J. W. Kimbrell has returned from Kamela, where he has been engaged in surveying.

H. S. Garfield, B. Hagen and L. C. Frazier have been appointed as a committee from Damon Lodge No. 4, K. of P. to draw up resolutions of condolence on the death of James H. Turner.

J. C. Salling, the "potato king," was in Pendleton this morning. Mr. Salling shipped a carload of tubers to the Walla Walla penitentiary commissaries.

E. H. Clarke has returned from his trip to Ellensburg. He reports the rain to have extended all through eastern Washington.

Judge Fee is in The Dalles holding the Wasco county term of court. James Mack and Mrs. Louisa Johnson were married Monday in Pendleton.

FUNNYBONE

A Word for the Hun.

Beyond totally disarming Germany and keeping her that way, making her retribute, repair, rehabilitate and cough up until she is hanging over the ropes, to say nothing of cramping her in a disciplinary strait-jacket for two generations, we believe the allies should be conciliatory and generous with Germany.

Losing No Time.

It was late in the afternoon when the Scotch minister arrived at the farmhouse. The housewife suggested that perhaps he would like a cup of tea before he began the "exercises." "Na, na," said he, "I aye tak my tea better when my work is done. You can put the pan on and leave the door ajar, an' I'll draw ta close in the prayer when I hear the him fizzle."

His Memory Still Bad.

Howell: Lost any umbrellas this week?
Powell: No.
Howell: Your memory must be improving.
Powell: No, I'm all out of umbrellas and I can't think to buy one.

Hurrying Time.

"Goodness!" gasped the sergeant of the guard, sticking his head out of the window. "What is the man playing at?"

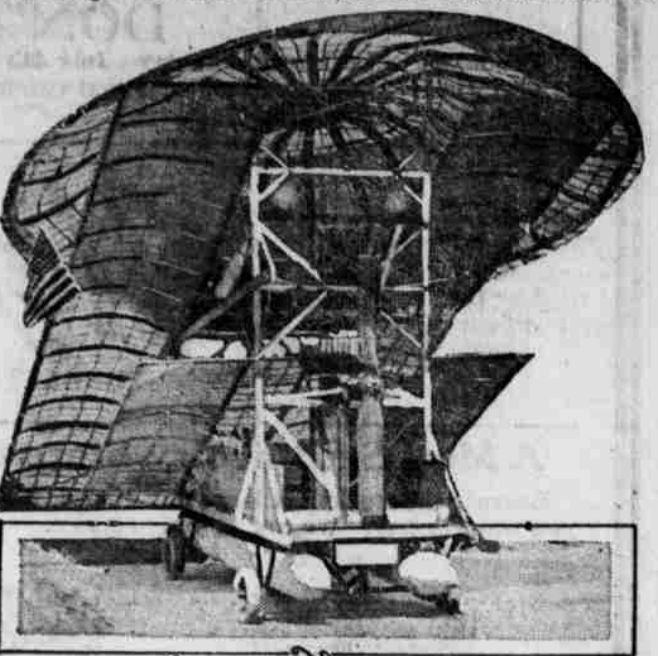

Private Murphy, who was on sentry go, was running as hard as he could from end to end of his beat.

"Get Mike!" yelled the noncom.

"What's the trouble?"

"Sure, an' there's no trouble at all, at all!" replied Murphy, panting as

THIS QUEER BIRD BUILT TO FLY ACROSS PACIFIC

This, friends, is not a junked airplane sheltered by a Japanese umbrella, but an honest-to-goodness attempt at a new type of machine created to fly across the Pacific. Harry Van Wie, San Francisco plumber, who built it, calls it a parasol plane. The parachute-like top is 15 feet across. The main sections are 31 feet long and 4 feet wide, and below them are side controls. There is a deck 5 feet long and 10 feet wide for passengers. Aluminum and oiled silk are the material of which it is built. It wouldn't fly when it was tried the other day, but Van Wie says with a few minor changes it will.

he paused in his scurry. "Then what are you running for?" "Well, ain't I on duty here for two hours? I'm only trying to get me two hours done quick!"

Ah, Yes.

"Wife dear, do you remember the night we sat on the front porch and watched the moonbeam play on the lawn?"

"Indeed, I do. That was the night you came home."

This Is the End.

Isobel was looking pensive and Annabel wanted to know the reason thereof.

"No more shall I hear his footsteps on yonder walk just as the clock strikes 8," she breathed.

"Gracious, Isobel!"

"And the old sitting room light will never burn low for him again."

"You don't mean it?"

"I do, and, furthermore, he will never sit on this sofa three nights a week and call me pet names as he has been doing for two years."

"I am astonished!"

"And tonight I am going to burn all the old love letters in my chest of drawers."

"But why? Are you going to discard him?"

"Discard him? Why you goose, I am going to marry him."

"Discard him? Why you goose, I am going to marry him."

SAY SOVEREIGNTY VIOLATED.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The Mexican government considers the crossing of the border by American troops a violation of Mexican sovereignty. General Aguilar, confidential ambassador to the United States declared in a formal statement today.

CAPE TOWN, June 18.—To commemorate the exploits of the South African troops on that date, in the Delville Wood Battle, 1917, the South African government decreed an annual national holiday on June 15.

Was This a Miracle?

No, just CHIROPRACTIC. That is what happened.

A man bought his ten year old son to me for treatment. The boy had been ill for about two months, started with a severe cold on his lungs. He coughed so continuously that the first adjustment was given under difficulty. He was unable to keep anything on his stomach and had lost about twenty five pounds. In three hours after the first adjustment the boy was hungry, ate a light meal which was the first retained for weeks. After the fifth adjustment the boy seldom coughed, and the last report I had of him he was gaining rapidly.

No, every patient does not gain so fast, the age, the nature of the disease and whether chronic or acute determine largely the length of time required for a cure.

I will gladly give you my opinion of your case free of charge.

Mr. Man

Did you refuse to buy a typewriter for your office because it cost a hundred dollars?

No-Why?

Because it saves you time and money and does the work far better than the old system.

Then Why Not Buy Your Wife
